Getting a Fairer Scotland

UNISON is engaging in the debate over Scotland's future before the 2014 referendum.

If we don't make our concerns part of it no one else will.

There will be many parties and campaigns looking for the support of UNISON members... let's make them work for it.

Let's not take anyone's word for it that things will be better simply because Scotland is or isn't independent.

Telling us what could happen isn't good enough. We need to know what the campaigns and parties actually want to make happen.

We need to make sure that whatever else happens - we get a Fairer Scotland.

It's not answers about flags and sporting teams that we need... but about jobs, services and rights at work.

So we need to ask questions that really matter - and judge the options on how concrete the answers we get are.

Here are a few questions that matter. You might want to put these to anyone looking for your support...

PUBLIC SERVICES

What will you do to keep services public and maintain standards?

RIGHTS AT WORK

What sort of rights should people have at work - and what will you do to improve them?

JOBS & THE ECONOMY

What will you do to create full employment?

EQUALITY

What will you do to make Scotland a more equal place?
